

Doria Admits •Getting $25,000 in Bldg. Deal

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators developed today that Anthony Doria received $25,000 which he said was for investment purposes — from a real estate man who made $45,000 on purchase and quick resale of a union building in Milwaukee in 1954.

Doria, former secretary-treasurer of the Allied Industrial Workers, insisted that checks sent him by Spiros Kallos of Milwaukee had nothing to do with the building sale. He said the money was an investment by Kallos in an Arizona mining venture.

The story of the building deal came a long go-around with the Senate investigating committee during which Doria steadfastly insisted he had never turned any union money to personal use.

Doria, a hulking man, sweating in the witness chair, acknowledged he used to keep thousands of dollars of union cash in an iron strongbox hidden under papers in union headquarters in Milwaukee. He said too that he never gave rank and file members an accounting.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anthony Doria's denial that he used union funds for personal projects brought further Senate questioning today based on his personal financial records.

The Rackets Committee recalled Doria for more testimony about what happened to $8,620 paid to him from assets of a de-

Prizes for Largest Melon Produced

First and second prizes will go to producers of the largest watermelons grown in the Hope territory this year, it was announced today by B. N. Holt, manager of the Hope chamber of commerce.

Growers competing for the prizes are urged to bring their melons to the chamber of commerce office where they will be weighed. No time limit has been set, but the largest melons usually mature in late August and early September.

The retail merchants' division of the chamber will award the growers with gift certificates which can be turned into merchandise. Several hundreds of dollars in certificates will be awarded.

The producer of the largest melon will not be eligible for the second prize, Mr. Holt announced, assuring greater competition among the growers.

Labor Unrest Is Reported in Poland

LODZ, Poland (Labor) — Unrest gripped this sprawling industrial city today when 10,000 municipal transport workers struck against a government move to link pay boosts with vodka consumption.

Police tear gas sent five persons to hospitals as the strikers flooded their ground despite demands by Communist authorities that they go back to work.

Government leaflets branding the strike illegal apparently had little effect in this city of 700,000 second largest in Poland. Hundreds of strikers took stations inside the city's five car barns to prevent strike breakers. Streets are the only means of public transport.

In a swift countermove, authorities moved in 1,000 trucks ready to operate an emergency transport service.

Communist party headquarters in Warsaw dispatched three Politburo members, including a trade union chief, to Lodz to seek some settlement.

Armed guards stood at every corner as police checked all vehicles moving into the city.

Strike leaders called on their colleagues to stay off the streets. Authorities previously have said strikes would be tolerated as long as they don't turn into demonstrations.

Police used tear gas to break up a clash of strikers and plain clothes at the main city depot. Workers were told by the government Sunday they would get a 50 per cent pay raise. Oct. 1, but they were told at the same time that their only hope of pay boosts would come through extra state revenue expected from a 15 per cent hike in vodka prices. The strike came in answer to the vodka price-wage boost.

Arkansan to Take Post in Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Leroy Noyes of near Fayetteville, Ark., will become director Sept. 1 of the Texas Livestock Sanitary Commission which supervises battles against livestock and poultry diseases.

Commission Chairman Frank Seaford made the announcement yesterday.

Noyes entered federal government service in 1919 and has had wide experience in programs against animal diseases. He retired in 1953.

Blows Himself to Bits Trying to Kill Wife

YREKA, Calif. (AP) — A part-time golfer just out of jail on a wife-beating charge sought to blast his wife out of existence yesterday.

He ended, said the sheriff's office, by blowing himself to bits and killing his son, daughter and son-in-law with a home-made dynamite bomb.

Wilbur Smith, 47, died instantly as his 16-year-old son Ted, his daughter Mrs. Charlotte Sturges, 20, and her husband Doug, 25, sought to wrest the bomb from him. They too died in the blast that rocked this mountain town and the countryside.

"We're definitely labeling it murder and suicide," said Under-sheriff George Banich.

He said Smith had been released Thursday from jail, where he had served a term for disturbing the peace and wife-beating that began with his arrest July 14.

Banich said Smith has vowed to "get Clara," his wife, 43. She was inside the house and was not injured in the explosion.

A neighbor, Patricia Swickard, 15, told Siskiyou County sheriff's officers she saw Smith arrive outside the house. She said the Sturgeses and young Ted went outside and argued with him; then tried to take something from him.

The blast followed, hurling pieces of Smith's body as far as 200 feet from the driveway where he had been standing. The scene was littered with broken bodies and smoldering bits of clothing when police arrived with volunteer firemen.

Mrs. Smith was hospitalized for shock and hysteria.

Banich said dynamite caps and fuses were found in Smith's car and fragments of oil paper such as that used for dynamite wrapping were found in the blast area.

Letter Rate Hike to Get House Okay

WASHINGTON (UP) — House approval today of the administration's request for a penny boost in letter rates was expected by Democratic and Republican supporters.

Even opponents of the increase said as they prepared to fight the bill they were "not too optimistic" over their chances of blocking it.

However, despite House approval, the bill was reported to have almost no chance of passage this year for the current fiscal year, year in the Senate.

The one-cent boost in letter charges is the heart of the multi-million-dollar postal rate bill.

Few Actresses 'Bust' Out of Cheesecake Stage

By MAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Many young actresses who go to Hollywood become trapped by "the cheesecake curse."

They never graduate above the leg-and-bosom publicity photos put out by their studios to build up public interest.

Jane Russell, who pioneered in making the three foot tape measure obsolete, feels now that at long last she has busted that box for ever.

"People used to expect me to come in with three naked men thrown over my shoulder," she recalled. Miss Russell, who looks like a strapping, tall-stemmed American Beauty rose.

This happened because of her first picture, "The Outlaw." The camera seemed intent on proving that Miss Russell's heaving chest quivered for more for deep sea pearl diving than acting.

Her promotional buildup made Lana Turner, "the sweeter girl," look like a fugitive from Alcatraz.

Compromise Civil Rights Bill is Blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Knowland firmly rejected today any idea that President Eisenhower might back down on the civil rights issue in exchange for an increase in foreign aid funds.

"The President is not trading the constitutional rights of any American for any piece of legislation," Knowland said after a White House meeting with the President.

Some House Democrats reportedly have suggested they might vote for higher foreign aid appropriations — something Eisenhower strongly favors — if that Republican would support the civil rights bill in the form approved by the Senate.

Knowland sought to knock down this idea after the weekly meeting between the President and Republican congressional leaders.

A preliminary showdown is expected in the House today on how it will handle the civil rights bill.

The prospect appeared to be that it would be shunted to the House Rules Committee, possibly to face further delay here.

Basically, the continuing behind-the-scenes struggle in the House is between Democratic and Republican leaders. House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) seeks to get House acceptance of the bill in substantially the form it passed the Senate.

German Mark Worth More Than Rated

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany's economic chief said today the German mark is worth more than its official rate but that the Bonn government will not boost its value without a massive international currency revaluation.

He called for the United States to take "the moral leadership in revamping the world's rates of exchange."

Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, the man generally acknowledged as the driving force in Germany's spectacular economic rise after World War II, outlined his views in an interview.

"What the world needs, Erhard said, is a limited period during which all currencies of the world would be free to peg themselves at their natural level.

Financial publications in Britain and other areas of Europe have been hammering away for months at the idea that the official rate and should be increased in value. Erhard conceded his point.

"The first time today, blaming 'rigid' rates of exchange in other countries.

But even though the mark is undervalued, he said, the Bonn government has no intention of uprating it on its own. The mark now is officially worth 23.9 U. S. cents. A more realistic rate, it has been suggested, would be about 26.3 cents.

Meany's Views Conflict With Those of Hoffa

CHICAGO (AP) — George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, has placed himself in direct opposition to the views of Teamsters bigwig James R. Hoffa on the matter of cooperation with congressional committees.

Meany reaffirmed his stand against labor leaders invoking the Fifth Amendment to protect themselves. He said the AFL-CIO will cooperate with congressional committees "turning up corruption in labor."

The labor chieftain reiterated his views yesterday in a news conference at the end of the first session of his organization's 29-man Executive Council meeting.

Hoffa, Midwest boss of the Teamsters Union and a growing power in labor ranks, has declared himself against the AFL-CIO amendment policy. He is a prime mover behind a labor group which is attempting to repudiate an Executive Council statement which says:

"It is the policy of the AFL-CIO that if a trade union official decides to take the Fifth Amendment for his personal protection and to avoid scrutiny by proper legislative committees, law enforcement agencies or other public bodies, into alleged corruption on his part, he has no right to continue to hold office in his union."

The Hoffa-led group contends this stand "has created a substantial threat to liberty and the strength of the union."

The Fifth Amendment to them. Constitution holds that a person does not have to give testimony which might incriminate him.

Disagreement between Meany and Hoffa on this matter might come to a head when the council takes up the case of President Maurice A. Hatcher of the Carpenters Union.

Michigan Family Special Guests Here

"What is the charge, doing 28 miles in a 25 mile zone," asked Mr. Jenero Balderrama of Bay City, Michigan? Orval Taylor, Bud Collier and Chief Jack Brown were quick to set Mr. Balderrama's mind at ease when they told him that he and his family were invited to be the guests of the Hope Chamber of Commerce Tourist Committee for lunch, entertainment and souvenir gifts.

Other residents participating in the treat for our Michigan friends were: Pony Reeves who serviced their car at his Magnolia Station, Harry Phillips who provided transportation to the Barlow Hotel, a new Pontiac from Hempstead Motor Company, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Smith of the Barlow Hotel who furnished a room for the guests to freshen up before lunch provided by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lauterbach, of the Checkered Cafe.

John Harrie who took the pictures at the Cafe, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Burton, and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Adams representing the Hope Junior Chamber of Commerce who acted as hosts for the day, and Curt Avery of Radio Station KXAR who interviewed them for a play-back over the radio.

Mrs. John Keck, Hope Basket Company, Split Hickory Company, Bruner-Ivory Handle Company, Hickory Aroma Company, Southwest Wood Products Company and the Chamber of Commerce provided gifts to the visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Balderrama and children, Inez, Raymond and Joseph, were returning to their home in Bay City, Michigan after a vacation trip to Monterey, Mexico and other points. They had planned to go to Mexico City but the recent earthquake changed their plans. Mr. Balderrama is employed by General Motors in Bay City.

North Little Rock to Pick a Mayor

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — With Mayor A. C. Perry already eliminated in an earlier Democratic primary several weeks ago, voters here today chose between City Attorney Reed W. Thompson and businessman William P. (Cincy) Laman in the mayor's race.

One alderman from each of the city's four wards also was being selected.

About one-third of North Little Rock's 16,000 qualified voters went to the polls in the first primary.

Late Cotton Research to Be Discussed

Research progress in cotton production as projected by the Research workers of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture may be observed Thursday at 10:00 on the Jesse C. Burke farm through a field day program arranged by County Agent Oliver L. Adams.

The field day is of timely importance to producers, suppliers and dealers in cotton because of the economic importance and production problems confronting cotton at this time.

Research workers directing the work on the Jesse C. Burke farm will show and explain the work results to date on insecticides, synthetic fertilizers and varieties.

The new early maturing variety of cotton named Rex, announced during the last week by the Agricultural Experiment Station, will be observed in the extensive variety planting. Results using the different new insecticides and the many formulations using the better known insecticides may be observed by cotton producers who at this date are in and facing a severe cotton insect infestation.

The Burke farm is about 8 1/2 miles northeast of Hope. The road takes up the case of President Maurice A. Hatcher of the Carpenters Union.

Morros Reveals County-spy Work for U. S.

NEW YORK (AP) — A pudgy little man in a camel's hair coat was about to leave his hotel room in Munich, Germany. Suddenly there was a knock.

The man opened the door and was handed a cable. He read a one-word message: "Cinemas."

It was a code word and meant: "Come home. Your life is in danger."

Gable Denies Affair With Ex-actress

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — A witness in the libel trial of "Confidential" and "Whisper" magazines testified today the publications used an affidavit that was "dynamite" to document a story on Maureen O'Hara's amours in Gramercy's Chinese Theater.

Lester Grady, a former editor of "Whisper," told the jury under prosecution questioning that affidavits — some of them from New York and Hollywood call girls — were used in the preparation of stories for the two scandal publications.

One such affidavit he said was used to support a story on Miss O'Hara, a flame-haired Irish actress, and her alleged love-making in a theater seat while the movie was showing. The story is part of the evidence listed by the prosecution in the original indictment.

As the second sensational day of testimony swung into high gear in Superior Court, where the magazines and their agents are charged with criminal libel, Ronald Quillan, a Hollywood call-girl, with waist-length red hair draped down her back, took the stand.

"I was engaged in prostitution," Miss Quillan said by way of indictment. . . Continued on Page Two

U. S. Accused of Plotting by Syria

DAMACUS, Syria (AP) — Syria accused the United States today of plotting to overthrow President Shukri Kuwaili's government.

An official government statement charged the United States had signified willingness to pay Syria between 300 and 400 million dollars in aid if Damascus changed governments and made peace with Israel.

Political quarters here said Syria would lodge a strong protest with the United States.

The U.S. Embassy in Damascus said it had received no word from the Syrian government of such charges.

The Damascus statement said major participants in the alleged conspiracy were ex-dictator Col. Adib Shishakly, and the Syrian military attaché in Rome, Col. Ibrahim Hussein. Shishakly was sentenced in absentia last February to life imprisonment on a charge of leading a subversive group.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress
Francesca de Scaffa once said she had an affair with Clark Gable in order to get information for an article, says a witness at the Confidential magazine libel trial.
But Gable denies even knowing the actress.
On the Hawaiian island of Maui, Gable said about testimony concerning the purported affair: "I think I would remember that, but to my knowledge I never met the lady in my life."
Gable is vacationing on the island with his present wife, the former Kay Spreckels.
Former Confidential Editor Howard Rushmore testified yesterday that Miss de Scaffa, former wife of actor Bruce Cabot, told him she had the affair with Gable. At the time, Rushmore said, she was gathering information for a story on Josephine Dillon, a drama coach to whom Gable was married from 1924 to 1930.
Rushmore had testified earlier that Miss de Scaffa, whom he peak of the flood.

The flood was caused by a steep downpour, rain that fell for at least 10 hours, beginning yesterday morning. It sent several heavy by creeks out of their banks. The water receded after the rain slack-ened about 3:30 a.m.
Some people awoke after midnight to find water in their bedrooms. Two motorboats with the Fire Department Rescue Units were used to evacuate people from their homes and they spent the remainder of the night at the Pope County courthouse.
Paul Zander, 47, a Little Rock engineer, was found perched in a small tree north of here. He said that he had been visiting Dover, a small town a few miles north of here to see about designing a water project and was returning to Little Rock when water made the highway impassable.
He got out of his car north of Russellville and started walking but the water swept him from the highway and he was forced to swim to his life. He said that he swam about 150 yards and a dragboat pulled him to shore.
A rescuer said that Zander was perched on the top of the tree—about 10 feet above the surface—said she got the information" on the Dillon story from a person

Asked to name the person,
Rushmore replied: "Clark Gable."
Rushmore said he had no knowl-

Marines Getting Out of Japan

TOKYO, (UP) — The U. S. Marines today began their final withdrawal from Japan.

Leathernecks of the 9th Marine Regiment began boarding ships at Homatsu Bay and Camp McGil southwest of here for transfer to Okinawa. Some troops will board ship tomorrow at Yokosuka with the rest of the regiment completing the evacuation later this month.

The entire regiment, some 7,000 men, is being pulled out under the decision to withdraw all ground combat troops from Japan.

13 Defendants in Cairo Plead Innocent

CAIRO — All 13 defendants pleaded innocent today at the opening of their military trial on charges of plotting to assassinate President Nasser and overthrow his regime.

The case against five civilians, including two former Cabinet ministers, and eight army officers has been reported to link them with both the United States and Communists.

The defendants include onetime Foreign Minister Mohamed Salah el Din and Defense and Social Affairs Minister Abdel Fattah Hassan. Both held office in a Wafdist party government before Nasser's rise to power.

Retired Brig. Ahmed Afef Nasser is among the army officers accused of plotting to install Salah el Din as prime minister and Hassan as interior minister. The group allegedly planned to install as president Gen. Mohamed Naguib, who has been under house arrest since 1954 after serving as president following the 1952 revolution that ousted King Farouk.

The published indictment did not accuse any foreign power of participation in the alleged plot. But a prosecution witness was quoted in the indictment as saying Abdel abee. The second week was spent with the F. L. Ream family in Springfield, Missouri.

tell on the fantastic clock—and danger career of Boris Milhailovich Morros.

For 12 years the Russian-born Hollywood producer acted as a master counterparty for the United States. The perilous role took him to obscure hotels, dimly lit cafes and dark street corners from Paris to Moscow.

At a news conference in the office of Acting U. S. Atty. Thomas B. Gilchrist Jr.

Morros testimony before a federal grand jury earlier this year brought an espionage indictment against Mr. and Mrs. Jack Soble and Jacob Abram, and against Mr. and Mrs. George Zlatovsk. Alba and Mrs. Soble were sentenced to 5½ years in prison. Soble will be sentenced Sept. 18.

The holding producer and music director told in a thick Russian accent how he hoodwinked the Soviets into thinking he was a spy for them. Yet, the whole time, he was spending reports to the FBI.

"I was never a spy in my life," he said at the outset, "and during the war I acquired a kind of bravery, and I guess I behaved properly in the 12 years of my activity."

"That is the only reason I am alive. Don't think I could do it again."

Morros said neither his wife nor his friends had "any inkling of my activity, which took me to Europe 88 times, including Moscow and East Berlin."

He said posing as a spy for the Russians wasn't easy.

"I hated everything they stood for and when I had to express myself to high Russian officials and to American spies employed by them it, terms of supporting their vicious ideology, I really had to do a more realistic acting job than any of the players whom I had ever directed in Hollywood."

Brassy Gal Kills Goose That Laid a Golden Egg

Dear Dorothy Dix: A friend has asked my wife and me to be best man and maid of honor at their 25th wedding anniversary ceremony. What are our obligations, and is it up to me to propose a toast? — LARRY

Dear Larry: Attendants at a 25th wedding ceremony are supposed to be the couple who did the honors originally. If they cannot be present at the ceremony, the occasion should proceed without attendants. However, if your friends insist, ask them what they want you to do. Since the case is unusual, the method of procedure must be individual.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My wife and I have been married 10 years. I don't drink, flirt or gamble, but she still isn't satisfied; she wants affection. I must admit she's a hard-working wife. She knows I'm pleasure in kissing for the movies, anyway. You're always thinking about your next line or if the kiss is lasting too long to be passed by the Johnston office.

"But I must say that it is more fun with comedians than anybody. They don't care how they look, so they can put their hearts into it. They are an uninhibited lot, so they let themselves go in a clinch. I like 'em."

Martha knows whereof she speaks. Her last four films have had her cavorting with comies. She has ranged from the wacky antics of Jerry Lewis in "The Delicate Delinquent" to the lecherous comedies of David Niven in "My Man Godfrey."

She just returned from Paris where she referred Bob Hope and Fernandel in "Paris Holiday." Now she's heading out West with two new funnymen, Rowan and Martin, in "Once Upon a Horse." "It's not easy working with many of the handsome lead ing men," she commented. "Many of them have been thrust into fame rapidly. They are insecure. They don't know how to handle themselves, and so they are dull to be with."

not strong and will do any kind of hard work to save me. What more can I do except turn over my pay and stay home?

DICKY DARE
Dear Dicky: You're a real good boy but not very smart. A kiss or two and your wife would probably go out to support you. The gal isn't unreasonable. She wants affection, but a small kiss or hug will be satisfactory. Surely you're strong enough for that!

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've recently lost a friend of whom I was very fond. When we met he told me not to love him as he just wanted friendship. I tried hard to follow his advice, but soon realized it was impossible. When he knew I loved him, he broke off. — FRANCES

Dear Frances: This was a subtle masculine maneuver designed to keep a man out of matrimony.

It can't fail. Your friend has been handing the same line to many other girls, all of whom wound up with broken hearts. Any one for band-aids?

Dear Dorothy Dix: A month ago my boy friend moved out of town. He wrote to me regularly up to a week ago. What should I do to get him back? Could it be another girl? — WONDERING

Dear Wondering: A number of good reasons might explain a week's lapse. They could range from a broken fountain pen to another girl. The only thing you can do is wait until the right one is forthcoming. Since you aren't pledged to each other, I think it would be an excellent idea if you circulated a bit and made more friends. If your romance-by-mail hasn't broken down this time, it may in the future. Be prepared!

Quarantined Dairies to Be Rechecked

WELCH, Okla. (AP)—Teams from the State Health Department and Agriculture Department start their check of quarantined dairy farms in northeastern Oklahoma today, hopeful that most of the dairies will be producing milk for commercial use by next week.

Dr. M. Riemenschneider, state veterinarian, said he believes it will take about three weeks before dairies can be released because of an anthrax epidemic are processed.

Riemenschneider, who has been guiding the three-week-old fight prospects for checking the disease. He said there were seven deaths in the quarantined area yesterday, and only two of them definitely attributable to anthrax.

Dairy farmers in the quarantine area must clean their equipment and then undergo a check by state agents.

Meanwhile, Gov. Raymond Gary

STAMPEDE AT BLUE SPRINGS

CHAPTER XXV

The sight of Dan Clement getting tossed like a sack of oats was something you wanted to see, deep down in you, but you never expected to. Now here it was, right in front of my eyes. I wished everybody in Blue Springs who'd stepped aside for Dan could see it, too.

But Dan wasn't done. He couldn't understand what had happened to him but in that dumb way of his, he was making new plans. He got up slow, safe, and Harold Huton, SBA president were scheduled to confer with Secretary of Agriculture Benson or some other USDA official in Washington today.

They were expected to ask for financial aid for farmers in Craig County and parts of Ottawa and X Mayo counties. Two similar requests have been rejected.

ing his head, blood dripping from his nose. Hay and pieces of paper hung onto his shirt. His hat was gone. He stood there unsteady and stared at Blanchard. He threw a look at me, to warn me not to help Blanchard.

Dan stepped closer and lifted his arms. I saw what he planned. He wouldn't rush Blanchard again. He'd get in close and grab and office. He got those arms around Blanchard.

Dan made his grab, lunging like a hungry bear. Blanchard stepped back fast on his cat feet. Dan almost fell on his face. Dan got his footing, then grabbed again, trying to curl those hairy, muscle-heavy arms around Blanchard's middle. But this time Blanchard didn't step back. He took Dan's arm with both hands. He threw his hip into Dan's leg and heaved. I saw Blanchard's face break into a great straining smile when Dan's feet left the floor. He laughed wild and loud when Dan pitched over his shoulder and hit the floor on his side with a loud thump of boards and a puffing cloud of dust and an explosion that was Dan's wind, knocked clean out of him.

Dan just lay still. Blanchard flicked a look at me. He was still smiling so I smiled back.

Dan got up and stood with his legs spread apart, weaving until he almost fell. He wiped at the blood on his face, never taking his eyes off Blanchard, breathing like he couldn't get enough. He shook his head and grunted and took a step toward Blanchard. But he changed his mind right then.

He turned. Dan did, stomped to the left ladder and let himself down it. Me and Blanchard watched his bloody head drop out of the loft.

Blanchard looked at the strip down and chunks of newspaper and the two-by-fours scattered in the loft. "Sorry, Pike," he said.

"Never mind about that. I can build her up again. It was worth it, just to see it."

Blanchard looked around. He walked to the north wall and picked up the rifle he'd been carrying when he came. He brushed the hay and dust off it and brought it to me and held it out. "Here. Compliments of the United States government. Hope it's as good as the one you lost."

It was the best Sharps Amos Carter sold. It was 10 times the rifle I'd lost. "Much obliged, Harney. This one is plenty good."

"Now tell me. What was it Dan wanted?"

I felt mighty sad then, remembering. "He wanted to deal, Harney. He was ready to bring Dorsey in."

Blanchard rubbed his eyes. "My coming up here spoiled it."

I nodded.

Blanchard said, "Luck's got to change, Pike. Can't keep on run-

B-7 Sets Record Flight to Morocco

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—A B-47 Stratofort flew non-stop from Guam to Morocco in 22 hours 50 minutes, ending the 11,450-mile trip just before midnight. Pinecastle Air Force Base said today.

The public information office said the flight was a record for a B-47 but it did not have information on a previous record.

The force said the route was over Japan and Alaska and across the North American continent.

Multiple aerial refuelings were used.

The plane had no special equipment and carried a crew of four.

ning this way." I dropped onto my bunk and looked at the blue barrel of my Sharps. If Blanchard was thinking it, I thought I'd better say it. "You got to get used to it, working with me, Harney. Ask folks."

Blanchard snorted. He frowned at me. "Get that out of your head. You're like anybody else."

I shook my head. "I'll get out of here, now that I've done about all the damage I can. You know if Lillian keeps a gun?"

"She wouldn't use a gun, Harney."

Blanchard stared at me for a few seconds. "I'm betting she would. I'll be on the hotel porch. It's just waiting now, tonight and tomorrow. They'll bring him in like we want. Or they won't."

I nodded. It sounded simple, the way he said it. Maybe it was. I said, "What do you want me to do?"

Blanchard pulled on his right ear and stared at me hard. "Now look, Pike. This thing is narrow. You got to feel free to step out if you want to. You already helped me more than I had any right to expect."

I felt sick all of a sudden. And mud. I said, "You want to get rid of me, you just say so, Harney."

"Cut that out."

Blanchard's words slapped me down. Now he was mad, too. I tried to meet his eyes, but I couldn't. He said, "People in this world got other things to do than give you trouble. You're no kid. Stopping like one. If I wanted to get rid of you, you'd know it."

He might just as well have spanked me. I just sat there, rubbing the barrel of the Sharps, thinking maybe I ought to rub my rump instead. I wanted him to understand how it was with me, how hard it was to get used to having a friend.

Blanchard went down the loft ladder. I took the Sharps rifle and looked at it for awhile, then put it down on the blanket, away from the hay and dirt. I had to come back to what was real, then. The deadline. Blanchard thought they'd turn Pete loose by tomorrow midnight. If they did, it was fine for him, for Pete and everybody, except me. If they didn't, Blanchard would have to move and I'd be with him. It came to me, bright and clear then how tight trouble had fenced me in.

Johnson Emerges in Good Position

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The man with the tingling ears is Sen. Lyndon Johnson, who likes prairie. He got plenty for his maneuvering on the civil rights bill. No matter who wins or loses in that fight, he did himself some good, personally.

The tall Texan, leader of the Senate Democrats, disclaims presidential ambitions in 1960. But, for a man who may be a candidate, he was painfully lost in the political woods when the civil rights fight started.

It was his opposite number, Sen. Knowland of California, leader of the Senate Republicans and also a presidential possibility, who got up June 20 and proposed the Senate consider the civil rights bill passed by the House two days before.

This move gave Republicans the jump in claiming—if a civil rights bill was passed—the gratitude of Northern Negroes, whose vote is increasingly important and in time the gratitude of Southern Negro voters.

This is what Johnson faced when Knowland suddenly opened the battle:

1. Ruination of his own residential hopes — if he has any — at the next Democratic convention if he joined his fellow Southerners in fighting a civil rights bill.

2. A shattering split if the Democrats had threatened all-out resistance. They could be crushed and a bill passed only if Northern Democrats lined up with Republicans against them.

3. Condemnation of the Democratic party, not only by Negroes but by all those sympathetic to civil rights legislation, if Northern Democrats let Southern Democrats block the bill. Such criticism would not help the Democrats' chances in the 1960 elections.

All three problems could be solved if:

Southerners agreed to compromise instead of filibustering; Northern Democrats agreed to some compromises the Southerners wanted; and the compromised bill still could get enough votes at least to pass the Senate.

It was possible House and Senate might fail to agree on a single bill satisfactory to both. Of it they did agree and President Eisenhower a bill heavily compromised, he might feel compelled to veto it.

Either of those things may happen now. If either does, there will be no civil rights law this year. But at least the Democrats will be in a better position to argue on who shot John than they were when Knowland took the lead June 20.

On the vote putting the big compromise into the bill — July 1 trial for those charged but only in voting rights cases but for all cases of criminal contempt of court — an overwhelming number of Democrats, North and South, voted together for it. An overwhelming number of Republicans voted against.

On the final vote to pass the bill — when it was no longer possible to stop the compromise — Republicans joined Northern Democrats and a handful of Southerners to approve the bill.

By this time the Southerners had dropped their resistance and let the compromised bill come to a vote although all but five of them voted against it.

Johnson voted for the compromise. So did one of the authors of the compromise, another Southerner, Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), twice a residential aspirant and perhaps a candidate for the nomination again. This vote kept them in good Southern standing.

Johnson voted for the bill as a whole, which he engineered, on final passage. So did Kefauver. No Southerners criticized them. Both now are on the record for a civil rights bill. A "no" vote would have hurt either's chances of convention three years from now.

In the end — because it was the Democrats who dominated the picture through Northern-Southern cooperation — Johnson, starting away back in the bushes on June 20, took the lead from Knowland.

Under the bill as it stands Negroes would gain. If the bill now is allowed to die or is vetoed, the Southerners, who talked of endless fight but then compromised, will be the winners. Nowhere in this picture does Johnson figure to lose.

Khrushchev Holds Secret Discussions

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev switched today from public speeches to secret talks on the sixth day of his stay in East Germany.

Fresh from a three-day swing to woo the friendship of the East Germans, Khrushchev set aside the entire day for consultations on economic and political problems of this satellite state.

He arranged to meet first with Walter Ulbricht, Communist party leader, for a political discussion. Then he was to join Soviet Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for economic talks with East German leaders.

Allied authorities said that such questions as these were likely to come up for decisions.

1. What to do about East Germany's lagging export program to the Soviet Union.

2. Measures to tighten East German cooperation with the other satellite states.

3. Steps to bolster the unpopular East German regime which is maintained solely by the presence of 22 crack Soviet divisions.

4. Soviet actions to influence the crucial West German national election Sept. 15.

Me! I didn't think I was ready to buy... until I found out about the EASY TERMS at HOPE AUTO COMPANY and everybody loves the '57 FORD

Come in and try what we honestly believe will be the happiest driving you've ever experienced—the '57 Ford.

It's easy driving every mile of the way—with big reserves of cream-smooth Ford power ready and waiting for your command. Have yours in the world's most modern "six"—Ford's new Mileage Maker Six—or any one of Ford's fine V-8's.

As for comfort, there's not another car in Ford's field that rides you in such soft, quiet, living-room luxury. The "cabin" is spacious, more liberally insulated than any other in the low-price field. And beneath it is a totally new "Inner Ford"—the last word in heavier, better construction.

See us today! You'll find plenty to please you—the car itself—the extremely high trade-in on your present car—and the satisfying terms we'll be happy to arrange.
